2019-2020 Request for a Dependency Override

For Undergraduate Students during the 2019-2020 Academic Year

Federal financial aid regulations assume that the family has primary responsibility for meeting the educational costs of students. If you are considered a dependent student according to the federal financial aid definition, your aid eligibility is determined by using parental information in addition to your information. Dependent students are required by law to provide parental information and signature to be considered for financial aid. Congress has established seven criteria that automatically classify a student as independent. If you meet at least one of the following seven criteria, you are considered an independent student for the purposes of receiving federal student aid: (1) born before January 1, 1994, (2) a veteran of the Armed Forces, (3) enrolled in a graduate or professional degree program (beyond a bachelor's degree) in 2019-2020, (4) an orphan or ward of the court or ward of the court until age 18, (5) married, (6) have children who receive more than half of their support from you, or (7) have dependents (other than your children or spouse) who live with you and receive more than half of their support from you.

Occasionally, due to unusual circumstances such as incarceration/institutionalization of both parents and an abusive situation, students should not be considered as dependent. If you can document why you should be considered independent for some unusual reason, you may petition for a waiver of federal regulations requiring parental information. Please keep in mind that a student's reluctance to request the income information from the parents is not justification for granting an override. In addition, the unwillingness of the parents to pay or provide information is not a valid reason either. In all cases, independence must have occurred out of necessity rather than choice. A successful petition for a dependency override depends on the specific information and documentation you are able to provide to verify your situation.

Please note that submitting an appeal does not guarantee approval of the appeal and that there is no guarantee an approved appeal will result in more or different types of aid awarded to you.
