Not a Catholic Nation: The Ku Klux Klan Confronts New England Catholics in the 1920s

Mark Paul Richard
Professor of history
And Canadian studies,
State University of New York
at Plattsburgh

Dr. Richard examines the KKK's largely ignored growth in the six states of New England—CT, ME, MA, NH, RI, and VT—and details the reactions of the Klan's primary targets, the Catholic population, particularly French Canadians.

Wednesday
March 16, 2016
4:00-5:30
K112
Alden Trust Auditorium

Sponsored by the French Institute and Phi Alpha Theta
(History Honor Society) at Assumption College