Kennedy 112

This is the story of Gina and Rosa, undocumented immigrant mothers who, armed with their faith and traditions, set out to stop America's most controversial immigration law.

Director Jenny Alexander and film advisor on immigration issues, Alexandra Piñeros Shields, will be introducing the film and answering questions afterwards.

Co-sponsored by the following departments and programs: English, Global Studies, History, Modern and Classical Languages and Cultures, Peace and Conflict Studies, Latin American Studies, and Women's Studies, and in collaboration with Catholic Relief Services on Campus, Community Service Learning, The Center for Teaching Excellence, The Cross Cultural Center, and the Social Justice Committee.
