- ethical leadership skills that enable graduates to develop principled approaches to inspiring, influencing, and guiding others;
- an in-depth understanding of the concepts and theories, as well as technical and professional skills in the “core” areas of business;

- integration skills that enable graduates to make decisions based on multiple, often conflicting, perspectives; and
- a global perspective that enables graduates to identify, analyze and practice how best to manage when faced with difference.

MBA in Healthcare Management

Preparing leaders in the healthcare industry who are passionate about improving healthcare quality, access, and outcomes for all.

Responding to Growing Demand

According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, employment of medical and health services managers is projected to grow 17 percent from 2014 to 2024, much faster than the average for all occupations. As the large baby-boom population ages and people remain active later in life, the healthcare industry as a whole will see an increase in the demand for medical services.

The MBA in Healthcare Management responds to this growing need. This program, developed in consultation with local healthcare experts, provides essential business administration skills and knowledge along with a deep understanding of the healthcare system.

“...This program is responding to a growing need.”

STEVE KNOX
CHIEF OPERATING OFFICER RELIANT MEDICAL GROUP

“I am excited that Assumption has developed an MBA in Healthcare Management. In my career in healthcare, I have found that traditional MBA students have to be further trained to meet the specific nuances of healthcare policy, business and care delivery models. This program is responding to a growing need to balance the aspects of business management with the aspirational goal of making people well. I think Assumption has developed a program that will do a better job of preparing healthcare leaders for the unique challenges of healthcare today - increased data analytics and use of technology, advanced business analysis and outcomes measurement, process improvement and strategy.”

As a Catholic institution that promotes critical intelligence, thoughtful citizenship, and compassionate service, the mission of the MBA in Healthcare Management is to provide the essential business administration knowledge and skills needed for today’s healthcare managers. Students will acquire an in-depth understanding of healthcare systems and the people they serve. The rigorous program will develop graduates well prepared for positions within the complex 21st century healthcare industry.
